WELCOME MESSAGE

Dear Members, Supporters and Friends,

Since our founding in 1957 by General James A. Van Fleet in New York City, The Korea Society's mission has remained to promote greater awareness, understanding and cooperation between the peoples of the United States and Korea. The Society seeks not only to enhance the spirit of goodwill and friendship between our two nations, but also to serve as a bridge between the peoples of the two countries and as a forum to foster public diplomacy and to strengthen the multi-dimensional partnership between the two countries.

The Korea Society continued to turn challenges from the COVID-19 pandemic into new opportunities as we began to once again in 2021 welcome an in-person audience to our headquarters at 350 Madison Avenue, while also utilizing a hybrid format to accommodate and expand our reach remotely. Our Korean Language Program grew by an annual rate of 40% with geographic diversity expanding to nearly 30 states. Through our partnership with the Association of Former Members of Congress (FMC), we resumed and held the Congressional Study Group tour to Korea in July, with eight members led by Co-Chairs Ami Bera (D-CA) and Young Kim (R-CA)—the third since its inception in 2018. The Society leadership team also visited Korea in December to meet with its friends and supporters, including KITA Chairman Koo Ja-yeol and 1st Vice Minister of Foreign Affairs Choi Jong Kun. And we have continued to grow our presence in print and social media.

The Annual Dinner was held in-person again on October 19 at The Plaza Hotel in New York City. Deputy Secretary of State Wendy R. Sherman delivered remarks as keynote speaker, virtually. The 2021 Van Fleet Award Honorees were LG and General Motors, in recognition of their long partnership and Ultium EV battery joint venture. Chairman of LG Kwang Mo Koo and Chair and Chief Executive Officer of General Motors Mary T. Barra provided acceptance remarks. We also were very fortunate to have Former Secretary of State Madeleine K. Albright deliver virtual special remarks. Secretary Albright was a long friend of The Korea Society and a tireless advocate for the U.S.-Korea alliance. She will be dearly missed.

One of the more notable new initiatives was the Van Fleet Policy Signature Event, "U.S. Diplomacy and Security in Korea 2021" held in conjunction with our November Board of Directors Meeting. Board Director Gen. (ret.) Walter Sharp led a panel discussion with General (ret.) Robert Abrams, Ambassador and Admiral (ret.) Harry Harris, and Admiral (ret.) Scott Swift, a former PACOM commander. We also launched a "Global View on the Korean Peninsula" conversation series featuring Wall Street Journal Columnist Walter Russell Mead.

In 2021, the line-up for our Policy, Arts & Culture, Corporate & Women's Leadership, and Young Professionals' Network programming featured many notable speakers, including: CSIS Senior Vice President and Georgetown University Vice Dean Victor Cha, Celltrion Group Chairman Jung-jin Seo, former Minister for Trade Yoo Myung-hee, former Minister of SMEs and Startups Park Young-sun, Director General of the International Vaccine Institute (IVI) Dr. Jerome Kim, Chairman of the Korea Chamber of Commerce and Industry Yongmaan Park, President and CEO of Samsung Biologics John Rim, Executive Vice President of Samsung Electronics Won-kyong Kim, Chief Executive Officer of LG Chem Hak Cheol Shin, Wilson Center Director Sue Mi Terry, singer-songwriter and celebrity Eric Nam and New York Times cooking columnist Eric Kim.

The Korea Society has thrived through the pandemic. We will roll-out the Society's Strategic Plan in 2022, a collaborative effort between the Board of Directors and the staff. We are excited to see what the future holds. Thank you for your support.

Sincerely,

Ambassador (ret.) Kathleen Stephens
Chair of the Board of Directors

Thomas Byrne
President and CEO

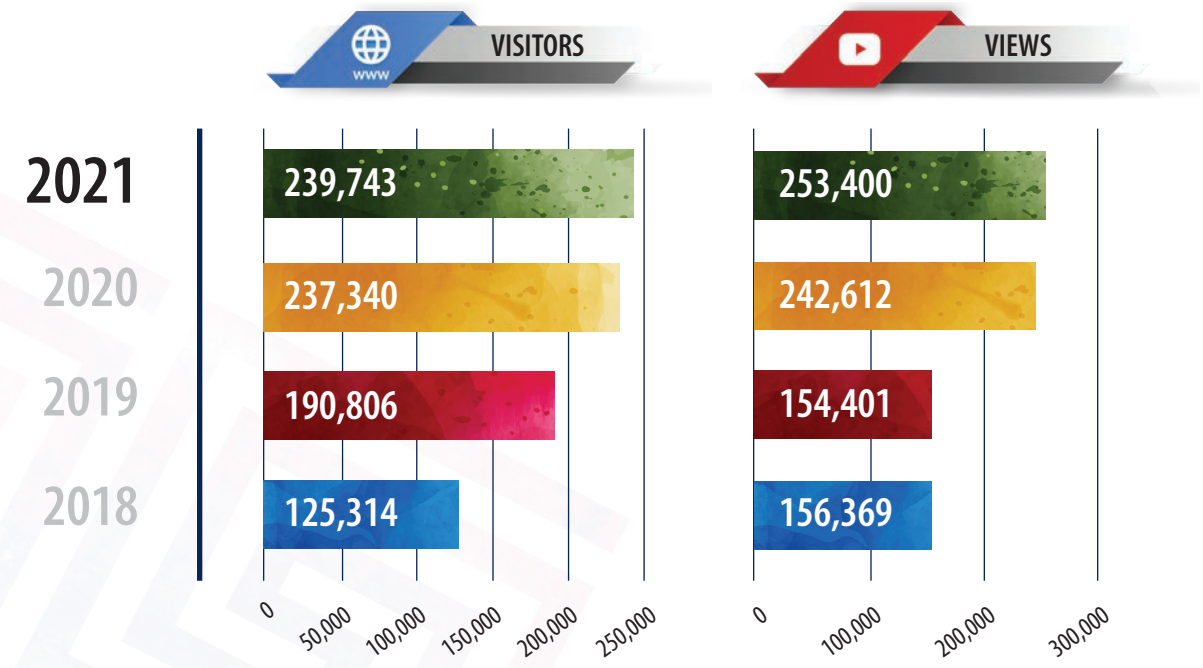

KEY NEW INITIATIVES

Marquee initiatives set the tone for a year of impactful programming. The Society's new initiatives in 2021 were:

The launch of two new program series, Women's Leadership in the U.S.-Korea Relationship, a series designed to elevate the impact of Korean and Korean-American female leaders in the U.S. and abroad and the President's Interview Series, which invites corporate leaders and industry experts to discuss issues relating to business, finance, and economics in U.S.-Korea relations with President Tom Byrne.

The launch of our Inaugural Van Fleet Policy Signature Event, U.S. Diplomacy and Security in Korea 2021. Former Ambassador and Admiral Harry Harris, UNC/CFC/USFK Commander General Robert Abrams, Pacific Fleet Commander Admiral Scott Swift and Korea Society Board Director and former UNC/CFC/USFK Commander General Walter "Skip" Sharp discussed Northeast Asia geopolitical and Korean Peninsula security and diplomatic opportunities and challenges from the perspectives of the longstanding ROK - U.S. Alliance.

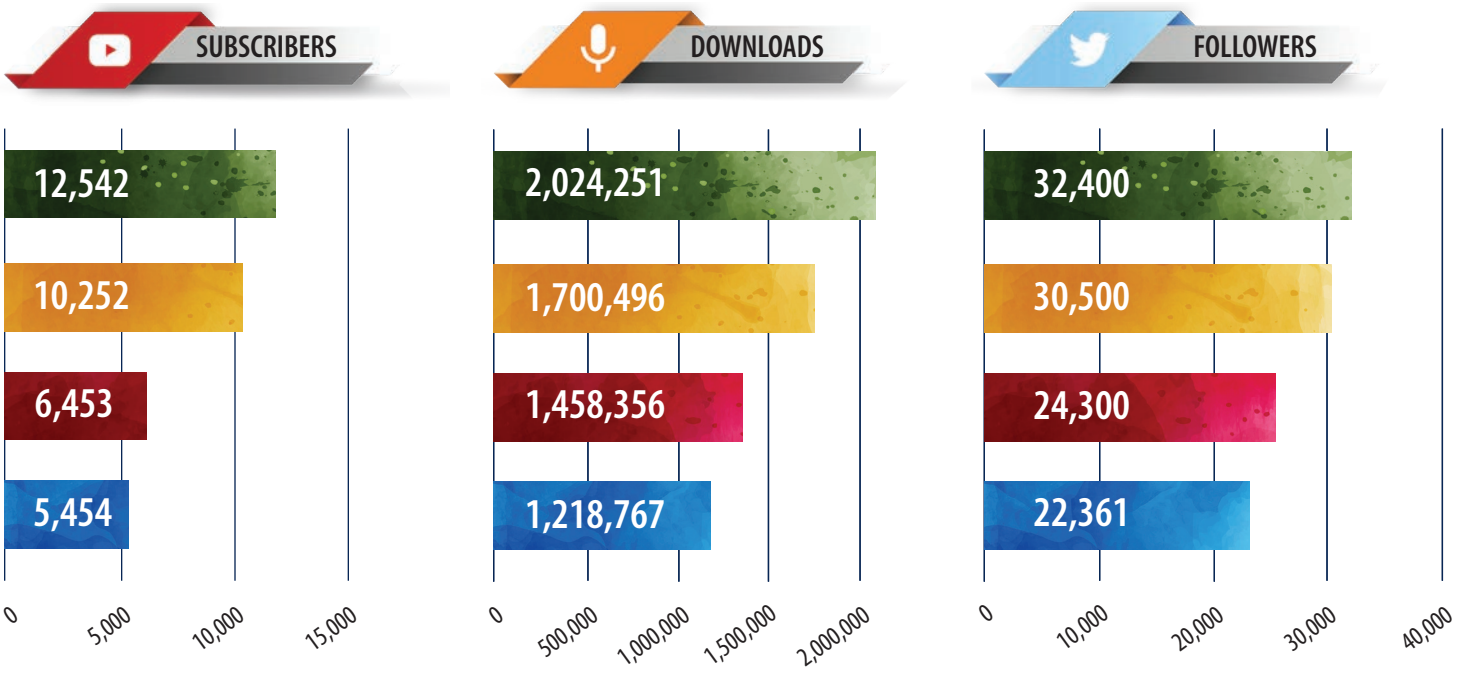

PROFILE AND AUDIENCE

PROFILE AND AUDIENCE

In 2021, the Society amplified its voice in both its print and broadcast media. The total number of citations for the year 2021 was 817, more than a tenfold increase over the media hits recorded in 2014. These media hits featured Society programs and events, as well as quotes and commentary from Society staff and board members. Society President and CEO Thomas Byrne had 10 pieces published in top-tier print media on a variety of topics relating to the Korean Peninsula. Such work included a January letter to the editor in the Financial Times on the inability for North Korea to reform its economic outlook unless it joins the International Monetary Fund. In a May 2021 article for the National Interest, Mr. Byrne argued for the mutual benefits of a U.S.-South Korea COVID vaccine swap. And in a September article in the New York Post, President Byrne remarked that the mutual defense treaty signed after the Korean War helped preserve South Korea as an independent nation and thriving democracy that we know today.

The Korea Society's online presence in 2021 demonstrates high audience engagement and interest. The Society's website had over 239,000 visitors, consistent with past years' trends. Our YouTube channel, a valuable platform where the Society's programs are live streamed and recorded for viewers, had 253,400 views and over 12,500 subscribers, a 22% increase from the year prior. The Society's podcasts surpassed over two million downloads cumulatively, with over 205,000 downloads from this year alone. The Society has also continued its strong social media presence with over 32,400 Twitter followers, 5,800 Instagram followers, and 1,790 followers on our LinkedIn platform (a 54% increase).

ARTS & CULTURE

The Arts & Culture department promotes the diversity and excellence of Korean culture and champions Korean and Korea-American artists and creators in various media. Following the success of our popular virtual programming in 2020, The Korea Society continued to host live webcasts and release pre-recorded videos to an ever-increasing and engaged audience of viewers. The Arts & Culture department also responded to a growing desire for in-person experiences by offering hybrid programming to the excitement of old and new supporters. By providing a variety of program offerings and ways to view them, the Arts & Culture department attracted new demographics and audiences, as reflected in the increasing viewership seen on The Korea Society's YouTube channel as well as sold-out hybrid events.

Art Exhibitions

In 2021, The Society continued its mission to showcase the breadth and preeminence of Korean and Korean-born artists through in-person and virtual programming.

Art & Artist

As New York eased COVID-19-related restrictions, The Korea Society gallery reopened to the excitement of eager supporters by hosting global art activist Mina Cheon for the solo exhibition Dreaming Unification/Protest Peace. Following the opening, The Korea Society presented an artist talk with Cheon held in the gallery, which included a special introduction from Ethan Cohen, director of Ethan Cohen Gallery, New York. This marked the first hybrid event of the year, with a limited in-person audience and a simultaneous online streaming.

In the fall, The Korea Society opened Interlacement: A Group Exhibition featuring the work of three innovative fiber and textile artists. After the successful opening of the exhibition, artists Woomin Kim, Sui Park, and Jayoung Yoon were each invited to record artist talks in the gallery to discuss their art and careers. Thanks to the staggered release of the recordings, The Korea Society not only maintained consistent interest in the exhibition but has also increased gallery visits from members, supporters, and the general public.

The Korea Society expanded its online art offerings by presenting the virtual exhibition The Feeling of Han which featured photographs and portraits of post-war Korea taken by Marie Ann Yoo. This special opportunity to view these images was accompanied with a video release of the photographer's artist talk.

Continuing to educate the public on Korean art history, Columbia University anthropologist Dr. Laurel Kendall presented an online lecture titled Sacred Images and Magical Things. During the live webcast, Dr. Kendall delved into her research on the consumption of sacred objects used by Korean shamans and spirit mediums in contemporary art-markets.

Following the success and interest in last year's video series New Narratives in Korea, The Society continued to meet with Korean creatives to discuss the popularity and rise of contemporary Korean culture. This year, The Korea Society spoke with renowned illustrator and viral sensation Wooh Nah Young, who rose to fame reimagining Western characters and popular culture icons such as Disney princesses and Marvel superheroes wearing traditional hanbok.

For fans of cycling, whether for sport or leisure, The Korea Society released Cycling in Korea, a conversation with life-long cyclists: Chang Wan Kim, the legendary rock singer and actor; Christopher Koo, Chairman of LS Group, KITA and Korea Cycling Federation; Ambassador Kathleen Stephens; and Tom Underwood, former U.S. Foreign Service officer. This video release included a special presentation by Ho Pil Yoon, the executive director of Sangju Bicycle Museum.

In June, Senior Director Jay Oh talked with author Euny Hong about her guide to social success, The Power of Nunchi: The Korean Secret to Happiness and Success.

Cuisine & Food Culture

This year The Korea Society continued to expand its popular culinary programming by offering live webcasts featuring restaurateurs, historians, and culinary experts to discuss diverse topics related to the business, preparation, and cultural significance of Korean food and food culture.

In light of the challenges restaurants and the culinary industry faced during the pandemic, particularly in New York City and Koreatown, three Korean American restaurateurs in New York participated in the live webcast Restaurants in the COVID-19 Era. Christina Jang of New Wonjo, Simon Kim of Cote, and Ray Park of Red Poke discussed the challenges of managing a restaurant during the pandemic and the creative strategies and solutions they developed to continue in this new era.

No food is as ubiquitous in Korean cuisine as kimchi, but kimchi is only one in the diverse repertoire of Korean fermented foods. The Korea Society hosted culinary historian Irene Yoo to give an overview of the vast array and uses of fermented foods in The Korean Art of Fermentation which entertained Korean food experts and new eaters alike.

The rise of the popularity, appreciation, and appropriation of Korean food can be seen everywhere in the U.S. from the number of Korean barbeques to kimchi taco trucks. Binghamton University Professor Robert Ji-Song Ku gave a presentation about the thriving U.S. Korean culinary landscape and its relationship to the global proliferation of Korean popular culture in Hot! Hot! Hot! Korean Food in the Age of Kpop.

Film & Media

The Korea Society also continued to showcase the artistic expression of Korean and Korean-American storytellers in film and media through exclusive film screenings and live webcasts.

Starting off the year, The Korea Society offered a free online streaming of the critically-acclaimed coming-of-age drama House of Hummingbird for three days. On the final day of streaming, writer-director Bora Kim participated in a director's talk with Senior Director Jungha Oh.

The Korea Society also had the special opportunity to present an advanced screening of the award-winning drama Minari, followed by a conversation with writer-director Lee Isaac Chung, producer Christina Oh, and Steven Yeun, and moderated by Ramy Youssef.

Exploring the success of K-content, YouTube's Chief Business Officer Robert Kyncl was joined by Joon Park, the leader of the first generation idol group g.o.d., and producer Robert Ock for a conversation about the growth of YouTube's global viewership in YouTube & K-pop with Robert Kyncl, moderated by Eva Pilgrim of ABC News. Neal Mohan, Chief Product Officer at YouTube discussed the rise of K-content and the new creator economy in K-Content, Youth Economy & Beyond with Park Young Sun, former minister of SMEs and Startups of Republic of Korea; Bernie Cho, President of DFSB Kollective; and Dr. Sue Mi Terry, Director of the Hyundai Motor-Korea Foundation Center for Korean History and Public Policy Wilson Center; moderated by Korean YouTuber Seungkug Lee. These two programs were made possible by the generous support from YouTube.

Performing Arts

During a time when in-person experiences were impossible and the future of performing arts was uncertain, The Korea Society made it possible for the public to enjoy exciting and engaging Korean music and performances from their own homes through virtual concerts and programming.

The year began with a musical celebration from the multi-award winning music group Ak Dan Gwang Chil (ADG7) as a part of The Korea Society's Annual Membership Party and a virtual concert.

K-pop continues to be on the forefront of the Korean wave. The Korea Society invited music critic Youngdae Kim to discuss the recent history of popular music in Korea in the live webcast From "Ga-yo" to K-pop. Viewers tuned in from around the world as a testament to the influence of popular Korean music and the public's interest in learning not only about K-pop idol groups but "trot" singers, hip-hop artists, and indie bands as well.

Later in the spring, The Korea Society hosted ethnomusicologist Professor Katherine In-Young Lee for Samul Nori: Dynamic Rhythms from Korea. In this live webcast, Professor Lee explored the history and development of Samul nori as a sonic and cultural symbol of South Korea.

Literature

In the sophomore year of the Author Talks video series, The Korea Society spoke with four Korean novelists from across literary genres about their writing and recently translated works. This season began with an interview with Kim Soom, author of the gripping novel One Left, about trauma and pain of comfort women and the legacy and burden the last few survivors carry today.

The Korea Society then spoke with popular science fiction writer Bae Myung-Hoon about the translation of his novel Tower, a series of stories set in a 674-story hypermodern skyscraper and sovereign nation. Continuing to work with a diverse set of Korean authors, The Korea Society invited Keum Suk Gendry-Kim to discuss her latest graphic novel, The Waiting, a deeply resonant story of families separated during the Korean War. The final episode of this year's Author Talks featured Sang Young Park, author of the bestseller Love in the Big City, a story of a young gay man searching for happiness in the lonely city of Seoul.

This year, The Korea Society also hosted live webcasts with poet and novelist E.J. Koh to talk about her powerful and aching memoir, The Magical Language of Others and with the author of the historical fiction set against the backdrop of the Korean independence movement Beasts of a Little Land, Juhea Kim.

Professor Minsu Kang delivered an informative and entertaining lecture online on one of the most famous episodes in the 500-year-long history of Joseon dynasty, the saga of King Sukjong, Queen Inhyeon, and Concubine Jang Hui-Bin.

CORPORATE AND WOMEN'S LEADERSHIP

The Korea Society continued to advance our Corporate programming by launching a new program series, the President's Interview Series, designed to discuss current issues in the U.S.-Korea relationship with an emphasis on business, finance, trade, and economics. The Korea Society invited renowned corporate leaders such as Yongmaan Park, Chairman of Doosan Infracore, John Rim, President and CEO of Samsung Biologics, and Hak Cheol Shin, Chief Executive Officer of LG Chem. The speakers highlighted the success, achievements, and challenges of each company's expansion to global markets as well as their enormous contribution to the U.S.-Korea business ties.

The program series Women's Leadership in the U.S.-Korea Relationship, was also launched in 2021 to elevate the impact of Korean and Korean-American female leaders in the U.S. and abroad. We also highlight the importance of women's leadership in Korea as well as in the U.S.-Korea relationship. To that end, we featured women in leadership roles across diverse fields to share their experiences and the challenges they overcome as leaders in their professions. This year's speakers included Kathleen Stephens, Former U.S. Ambassador to the Republic of Korea and Board Chair of The Korea Society, Myung-hee Yoo, Minister for Trade of South Korea, and Young Kim, U.S. Representative for California's 39th Congressional District.

KOREA AND CORONAVIRUS

The impact of COVID-19 and the strategies to overcome the pandemic were one of the major issues actively discussed in the global community. To quickly respond to the public need, The Korea Society provided timely and informative conversations through our 'Korea and Coronavirus' series. The Society's President Tom Byrne conducted an interview with Jung-jin Seo, Chairman of Celltrion, Young-sun Park, Former Minister of SMEs and Startups, and Jerome Kim, Director General of International Vaccine Institute (IVI) to highlight the current status and future developments on Coronavirus treatments, vaccines, and other critical supplies.

EDUCATION

The Korea Society is committed to providing vital educational programming to foster greater awareness, understanding and appreciation of Korea, its people, its history, and the importance of the Korea-U.S. alliance. In 2021 the Education department continued to expand the reach of its programs, attracting diverse audiences that included individuals, students, teachers and university faculty across the U.S. and creating opportunities for virtual interactions with students and leaders in Korea. These initiatives were made possible by generous contributions from the Korea Foundation and CKD Kochon Foundation.

Project Bridge Youth Ambassador Program

프로젝트 브리지

PROJECT BRIDGE

In its 28th year, the Project Bridge Youth Ambassador Program is the longest-running of the Society's education offerings. In 2021 it provided two cohorts of high school students with an understanding of Korean culture, history, language, education, and economic development as well as current events on the peninsula and in the region.

Since its inception in 1993, following the Los Angeles riots and the devastation of Koreatown, the Program has been a collaboration between The Korea Society in New York and the Pacific Century Institute in Los Angeles aimed at bridging divides and cultivating intercultural and leadership skills among urban youth. The Society's recent partnership with and support for the Maureen and Mike Mansfield Center, located in Missoula at the University of Montana, expanded not only the demographic reach of the Program but also incorporated a rural and Native American student perspective.

Selection

Annually in early fall the Program, through a competitive application process, selects 20 youth ambassadors—eight from New York, eight from Los Angeles and four from Missoula—for a full academic-year of programming. New in 2021 the Society created an online application shared by all three sites, an enhancement that advanced a more streamlined and transparent process and ensured greater accessibility for students.

Striving for city-wide participation, the eight New York Youth Ambassadors selected in fall 2021—half juniors and half seniors—hail from all five city boroughs and represent widely varied backgrounds and high schools.

More importantly, the Program initiated virtual interactions with student groups in Korea. In June 2021 they met with students at Jeonbuk Foreign High School where Jeollabuk-do Director General Han and Korea Society President Thomas Byrne gave opening remarks. A second virtual meeting was held with students from Daedong Taxation High School in Seoul. Students had the opportunity to compare their daily lives, places they love to visit in their home cities, and the impact of COVID on their schooling. Both events were highly successful and we plan to continue these virtual interactions with future cohorts.

As the program drew to a close youth ambassadors researched and prepared in-depth presentations on topics that included: education in Korea, a Korean and U.S. health care practices and cost comparison, a history of the Silla Dynasty, and an exploration of Korean cuisine encompassing street food, royal cuisine, school lunches and temple food.

Programming and the Impact of COVID

In 2020 and 2021 the Program, which traditionally consists of eight to ten in-person bi-monthly workshops, a ten-day study tour to the Republic of Korea in the spring, and individual research that culminates in a June community presentation, was significantly disrupted by the pandemic, not least of which was the cancellation of the study tour in both years. Breaking with tradition and given the commitment of the 2019-2020 cohort, all agreed to continue in the program in 2021 allowing us to delve more deeply into an exploration of Korea.

From January to early July 2021 participants in this earlier cohort engaged in a total of 16 workshops examining Korean 20th century history, language, culture, cuisine, Korean-American relations and developing intercultural competence skills. For the first time they took part in joint discussions with the youth ambassadors in Los Angeles and Missoula. Although they could not visit Korea in-person, over the full two-year period the Society nearly tripled the number of workshops and events for the New York students.

Silla Dynasty (신 라)
57 BC – 935 AD

The Silla Kingdom was one of Korea's "Three Kingdoms," along with the Baekje Kingdom and Goguryeo.

One of the longest sustained dynasties in human history.

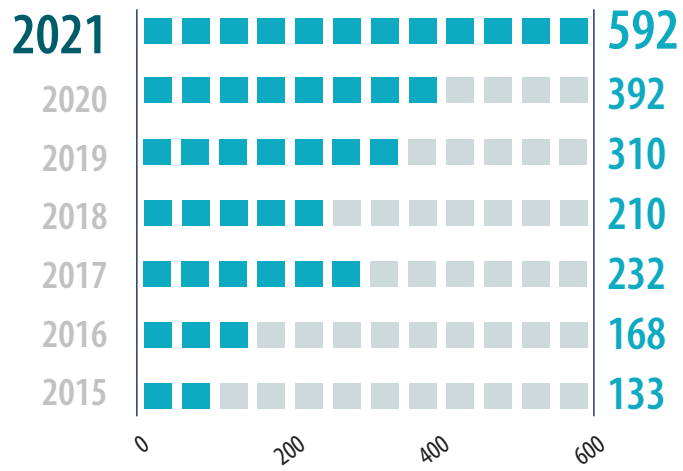

The Korean Language Program

From its modest beginnings in 1994 with only two classes, the Korean Language Program (KLP) has evolved into a comprehensive, eight-level year-round Program offering three terms: a winter and fall 12-week term and a summer 10-week term. In 2021 courses ranged from Introductory Korean I to Advanced Reading and Discussion. Each term approximately 15 courses were offered with class size capped at 15 to ensure optimal interaction among the students and with the instructor.

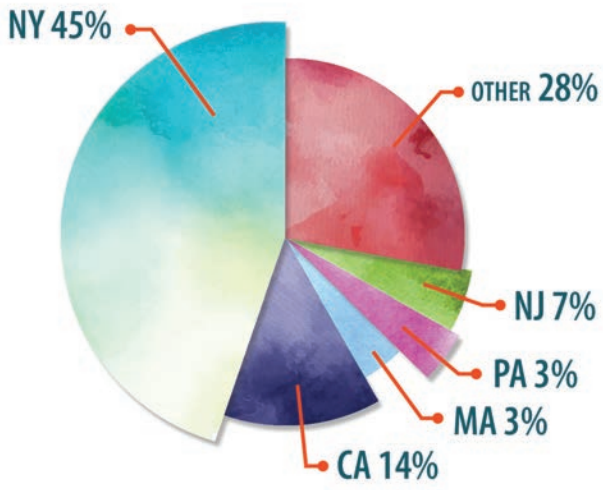

Seven-Year Enrollment Comparison

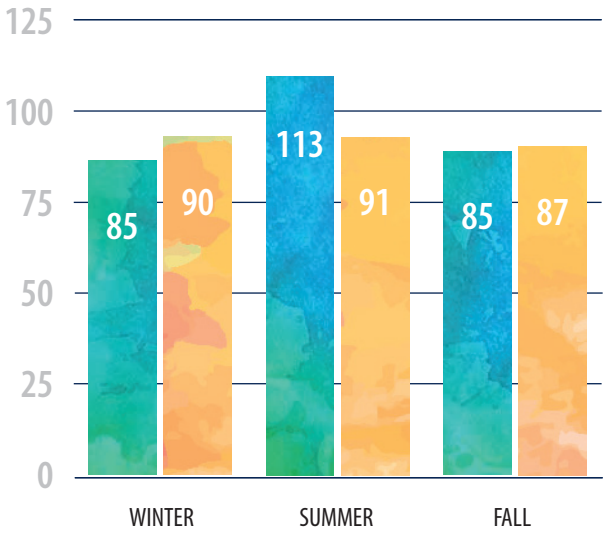

*Note: Figures from Fall and Winter

Top 5 States Where Students Reside

Comparison of New VS. Returning Students

Over the past several years the KLP has experienced strong enrollment growth. The high quality of instructors we attract, our robust recruitment and marketing outreach, flexible scheduling, small class size and reasonable tuition are all contributing factors to the program's growing success. From 2015 to 2019, the program grew by 130%. However, after our move in 2020 to fully online offerings, we achieved our largest increases. By the end of 2021, when compared to 2015, enrollment had grown by 315%.

Further, the KLP reached a much broader and more diverse audience. No longer restricted to in-person study for students in the greater New York City metropolitan area, in 2021 we attracted students from 30 U.S. states, the District of Columbia and Puerto Rico as well as seven countries–Canada, Costa Rica, El Salvador, Germany, Luxembourg, South Korea and Zambia.

2021 WINTER TERM:

In addition to our usual promotional strategies, for the first time the Society initiated outreach to sister organizations such as the Korea Economic Institute of America, Pacific Century Institute and Friends of Korea to extend promotion to a larger demographic audience. KLP enrolled 176 students, a record breaking 57% increase from the previous year.

2021 SUMMER TERM:

For the second year running, KLP exceeded all previous summer registrations. For the first time registrants exceeded 200 and enrollments increased by 61% as compared to 2020.

2021 FALL TERM:

Again, KLP enrollment growth was significant, reaching a record high fall term of 172 students, a 12% increase over fall 2020. Further, the majority of classes reached maximum enrollment.

Additional KLP Programs

Continually working to better meet student needs, in fall 2021 as a response to student requests for additional speaking practice the KLP launched K-CHAT. Open to all beginner and low-intermediate level students, the structured conversation pilot was very well-received. We plan to expand K-CHAT offerings in 2022.

Minari, the Academy Award nominated movie, was the theme of our third KLP Debate. Open to intermediate and advanced students, participants explored the Korean U.S. immigrant experience and the economic, community and familial challenges of adjusting to life in the heartland of the U.S. The discussion, conducted entirely in Korean, was moderated by a Korean instructor who provided language use feedback to participants.

The Society hosted its third Language Exchange Program, a six-month offering where KLP students are matched with native speakers for conversation exchange. Starting in fall 2020 and running through spring 2021, we were able to introduce a truly international dimension to the Exchange Program. Previous exchanges matched KLP students with interested New York area Korean language partners who regularly met in-person to converse and practice in informal settings. By going virtual we were able to not only increase the size of the Program but also match KLP students with native-language students at Ewha University and Korea University. A total of 33 students participated using a chat app created and monitored by the Program to assess and ensure the value of the experience.

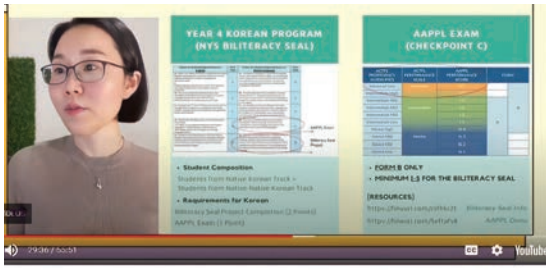

Lectures and Events

In 2021 our ability to host K-12 teachers and students at the Society or to visit schools in-person or even virtually was greatly curtailed. However, throughout the year we strove to maintain existing relationships and take advantage of the opportunities that online platforms provided.

In the spring we launched the Spotlight on Korean Studies in K-12 Schooling series which explores best practices in advancing Korean Studies at the elementary through high school levels. In our first session New York educators shared their best practices incorporating Korean Studies into the curriculum, stressing the importance of community outreach and administrative support from the school.

Dr. Bruce Ballard, from the Bronx Charter Schools which serves a predominantly African and African American community, described the robust and highly popular elementary school programming they have evolved over the past decade to include language study, music performances, art exploration, and shijo competitions.

Ms. Jisun Kwon and Ms. Kleio Park discussed the evolution of Korean Studies at Francis Lewis High School in Queens, NY. Traditionally geared to Korean heritage students, half of the students now enrolled in their language program hail from different ethnic backgrounds. Recently a few of their non-native Korean language students were awarded the New York State's biliteracy seal.

Virtual Webinars

In March the New York Republic of Korea Consulate coordinated a virtual Governors Association of Korea (GAOK) Webinar on the role of local governments in public diplomacy focusing on Korea-U.S. relations. Linda Tobash, Senior Advisor for Education, introduced the work of the Society and our cooperative endeavors hosting policy and other events as well as our outreach to schools and interactions through both our Korean Language and Project Bridge Programs.

In April the Society's Education and Policy departments jointly participated in a virtual discussion hosted by the Office of International Students and Scholars at Teachers College, Columbia University. Discussion focused on recent changes to the North Korean economy and the role of international education exchange as a tool of soft power diplomacy. Jonathan Corrado, Director of Policy, shared his assessment of the North Korean leadership's long-term geopolitical strategy factoring in the current environment constrained by the pandemic and sanctions. Linda Tobash discussed the impact of international exchange, sharing her experiences as a former Korea Peace Corps volunteer and her work on exchanges such as Fulbright and US-AID programs.

In September the Education department hosted a lively virtual discussion with the TISSUE team at Incheon International High School. Comparing Korean and U.S. educational systems, discussion between the students and Linda Tobash focused on curriculum, daily school life, the university entrance process and how pressures on students in both countries compare.

POLICY

In 2021, The Korea Society policy team curated a suite of programming to explore the multidimensional and mutually beneficial U.S.-South Korea relationship, including the fields of security, politics, diplomacy, and economics. 2021 programs focused on the U.S.-ROK Alliance, as well as regional economic and security factors. Special program streams this year included: the future-oriented and global nature of the Korea-U.S. relationship, new thinking on Korean Unification, and the U.S. Congress and Korea. As an overriding goal, the Korea Society policy team sought to contribute to the American public and policymakers' understanding and appreciation for Korea and the U.S.-Korea relationship. In terms of targeting influential decision makers, we engaged leaders from governments, the United Nations, research institutions, nonprofit organizations, media, and academia. The policy team, led by Senior Policy Director Dr. Stephen Noerper and policy director Jonathan Corrado, recruited experts recognized as eminent leaders in their respective disciplines to energize capacity building and networking effects.

The Korea Society leveraged strategic partnerships with think tanks and universities, including: the United Nations Department of Peacebuilding and Political Affairs and Department of Peacebuilding Operations (UNDPPA-DPO), the Association of Former Members of Congress (FMC), the Japan Society, the Asia Society, the National Committee on American Foreign Policy (NCAFP), the Council on Foreign Relations (CFR), the Korea Economic Institute of America (KEI), The Stimson Center, The Atlantic Council, the Economic Research Institute for East Asia and ASEAN, the Korea Development Institute, McLarty Associates, the Semiconductor Industry Association, Centerview Partners, the Pacific Forum, Harvard University's Kennedy School, Columbia University School of Professional and International Studies (SIPA), Columbia University Weatherhead East Asian Institute, Columbia University Center for Korean Research (CKR), the Center for Strategic and International Studies (CSIS), the Shorenstein Asia-Pacific Research Center at Stanford University, the Stanford Center for International Security and Cooperation, the National School of Tropical Medicine at Baylor College of Medicine, Waseda University, Johns Hopkins University, Bard College, the Woodrow Wilson Center's Hyundai Motor-Korea Foundation Center for Korean History and Public Policy, the Korean Defense Veterans Association (KDVA), the Committee for Human Rights in North Korea (HRNK), the George W. Bush Presidential Center, the Bush Institute, Columbia University Center for Korean Legal Studies, and Columbia University Business School's APEC Study Center.

National Assembly Roundtable Dialogues

The Korea Society regularly welcomes visits from delegations of the Republic of Korea National Assembly to discuss issues important to the Alliance and relationship. In 2021, the Society welcomed three such delegations for a dialogue in our executive boardroom and a tour of our facilities, including the main event space, art gallery, and landscaped rooftop terrace. First, in June, the Society welcomed a delegation including Rep. Kim Kyung-hyup, Rep. Park Chan-dae, Rep. Kim Min-chul, and Rep. Lee Eunju. In September, the Society welcomed representatives from the Trade, Industry, Energy, SMEs, and Startups Committee, including: Rep. Lee Hackyoung, Rep. Kang Hoonsik, Rep. Eom Taeyong, and Rep. Cho Junghoon. In October, the Society convened a roundtable with National Assembly delegates from the Foreign Affairs and Unification Committee, including: Rep. Lee Kwangjae, Rep. Kim Young-ho, Rep. Tae Youngho, Rep. Kim Hong-gul, and Rep. Jin Park.

Congressional Study Group on Korea

Despite challenges brought on by the pandemic, the Society nonetheless continued to invigorate its partnership with the Association of Former Members of Congress (FMC) on the Congressional Study Group on Korea (CSGK). In July, Korea Society President Tom Byrne along with members of Congress including Representative Ami Bera (D-CA) and Representative Young Kim (R-CA) conducted its member study tour to South Korea, visiting the DMZ and Camp Humphreys. In November, the Society and the FMC held a Bipartisan Former Member Roundtable titled, Analysis of U.S. Midterm Election and Its Impact for U.S.-ROK Relations.

UN Dialogues

The Korea Society conducted a series of roundtable dialogues for the United Nations Programme to Support in Cooperation in Northeast Asia, which encourages engagement aimed at peace and confidence-building on and around the Korean Peninsula. The 2021 sessions included: Reflections on Dialogue with the DPRK with H.E. The U.S.-ROK Alliance - Increasing Understanding and Support

In May, shortly following the first in-person meeting between South Korean President Moon Jae-in and U.S. President Joseph R. Biden, the policy team conducted a program called U.S.-Korea Summit Analysis. This rapid response analysis covered the latest trends regarding the U.S.-Korea Alliance, geostrategic coordination, North Korea issues, and COVID-19 vaccine diplomacy. It featured Korea Society president and CEO Tom Byrne in conversation with former UNC/CFC/USFK Commander General (ret.) Vincent Brooks, Columbia University School of International and Public Affairs George W. Ball Adjunct Professor Ambassador (ret.) Christopher R. Hill, and Dr. Peter J. Hotez, Dean of the National School of Tropical Medicine at Baylor College of Medicine.

Seeking to empower, train, and educate analysts of Korean and Alliance affairs, the Society conducted a program in November titled, What Makes a Great Korea Analyst? For this discussion, Senior Director Stephen Noerper and Policy Director Jonathan Corrado engaged with senior analyst experts: Council on Foreign Relations Senior Fellow Scott A. Snyder, Atlantic Council Senior Fellow Markus Garlauskas, and Stimson Center nonresident fellow Rachel Minyoung Lee. The speakers discussed the latest developments on and around the Korean Peninsula and thoughts on how media, members, and analysts current and aspiring might best hone skills and insights on Korea.

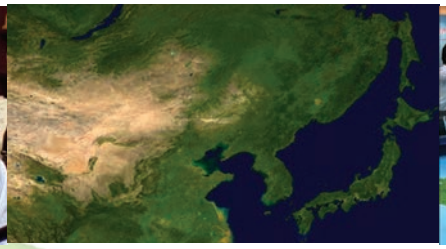

Marking the anniversary of the Armistice Agreement, the society conducted its Annual Armistice Day Salute on July 27. Since its founding by General James A. Van Fleet, the Korea Society has honored the service and sacrifice of Korean war veterans. This video salute featured remarks on the anniversary of the signing of the 1953 Armistice by Society president and CEO Tom Byrne, Korean Consul General Ambassador Chang Won-sam, Korea Society board chair and former Ambassador to Korea Kathleen Stephens, Korea Society board member and former Commander Walter "Skip" Sharp, and Korean War Veterans area commander Salvatore Scarlato.

In September, the Society conducted a program titled, The US-Korea Global Partnership: Supply Chain and Semiconductors. This was the first program in a new series chronicling the rise of global cooperation between the United States and Korea. The program discussed supply chain resilience and semiconductors, featuring Won-kyong Kim, the Executive Vice President of Samsung Electronics, John Neuffer, President and CEO of the Semiconductor Industry Association, and Tami Overby, McLarty Associates Senior Director and former president of the U.S. Korea Business Council.

Pursuing its effort to cover and support the relationship between the U.S. Congress and Korea and Korean Americans, the Society conducted two programs in November. The first was titled, Asian American Involvement in U.S. Politics Featuring Congressman Andy Kim. For this discussion, Congressman Andy Kim explored how the role of Asian Americans in U.S. politics evolved over time and responded to pressing issues. Next, the Society partnered with the Association of Former Members of Congress (FMC) for a program titled, Countdown to the US Congressional Midterm Elections: What Can We Expect from the 117th Congress? In this program, the Hon. Elizabeth Esty (D-CT, 2013-2019), the Hon. Mike Bishop (R-MI, 2015-2019), and the Hon. L.F. Payne (D-VA, 1988-1997) took The Korea Society stage for a live webcast discussion about the Congressional legislative agenda and how the US can work with allies and partners such as The Republic of Korea to advance shared interests.

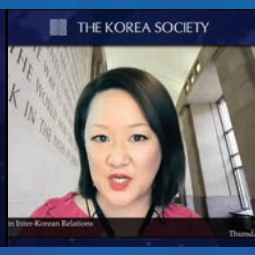

North Korea and Inter-Korean Relations

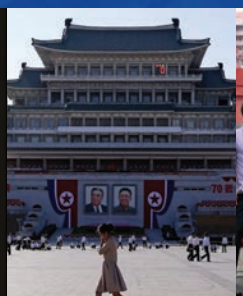

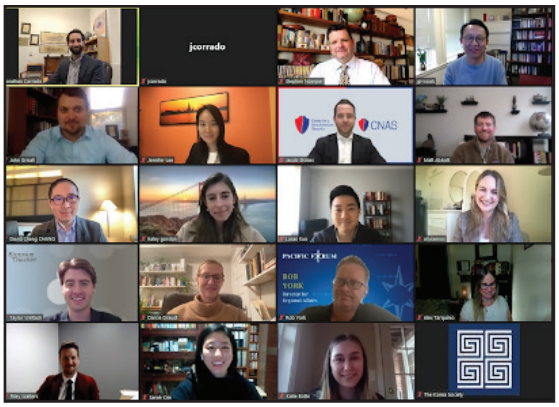

Providing clarity and insight into the evolving inter-Korean relations, the policy team conducted a series of programs focusing on North Korean developments. In January, the policy team welcomed Stanford University's Robert Carlin and Track2Asia's Glyn Ford to speak about the political and economic implications of North Korea's Eighth Party Congress. With Senior Director Stephen Noerper and policy director Jonathan Corrado, the two speakers provided critical insight on possibilities for change, impasse and next steps in this timely, newsmaker event. Marking the anniversary of the UN Commission of Inquiry Report in February, the Society held an event titled Human Rights and North Korea, featuring The Committee for Human Rights in North Korea (HRNK) executive director Greg Scarlatoiu and Bush Institute senior fellow Dr. Victor Cha. In March, the Society conducted a program titled New Developments in Inter-Korean Relations, featuring Woodrow Wilson Center director of the Hyundai Motor-Korea Foundation Center for Korean History and Public Policy Jean Lee. In conversation with Stephen Noerper and Jonathan Corrato, Lee addressed the impasse and opportunity between North Korea and South Korea and offered recommendations for US and other policy makers on peninsular realities and possibilities. In September, Harvard University Director of the Korea Project and Adjunct Lecturer John Park shared insights into recent North Korea developments and China's interplay in a program called, North Korea, Inc. and China.

Kim Koo Professional Series and the Sherman Family Emerging Scholar Lecture

Established with the generous support of the Kim Koo Foundation, the Kim Koo Professional Series at The Korea Society brings together senior New York professionals from business, media and international organizations for a timely discussion of events on the Korean Peninsula and in East Asia. In 2021, the Society conducted its twelfth and thirteenth series, featuring dialogues with senior scholars and other thought leaders in Asian affairs including Sue Mi Terry, The Center for Strategic and International Studies; Alexis Dudden, University of Connecticut; Sonja Bachmann, United Nations Department for Political Affairs; Dr. Aram Hur, University of Missouri Department of Political Science; Dr. Jieun Baek, Harvard Kennedy School's Belfer Center; Dr. Gi-Wook Shin, Stanford University Shorenstein Asia-Pacific Research Center.

The 2021 Sherman Family Emerging Scholar Lecture was awarded to Aram Hur, University of Missouri Assistant Professor and Institute for Korean Studies Co-Director. Hur presented Korea's Changing National Story and Democratic Future, addressing Korean nationalism, a "rapidly fragmenting and changing" national story, and the danger of democratic rollback.

New Approaches to Unification

Supported by a grant from the UniKorea Foundation, this program series aimed to promote dialogue and awareness on Korean Peninsula peace and security issues, covering U.S.-Korea relations, inter-Korean relations, and regional relations from a variety of functional perspectives. The series consisted of online moderated dialogues where program speakers seek to identify opportunities for forward progress to help specialists and policymakers generate new thinking on core problem areas.

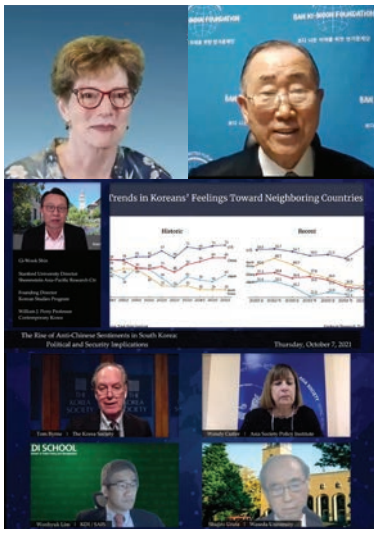

The series continued in 2021, starting in February with Pathways to a Brighter Future for North Korea's Economy, a discussion about scenarios for North Korean development and inter-Korean economic integration, led by Seoul National University economics Professor Byung-Yeon Kim, former World Bank economist and a consultant on Asian affairs Brad Babson, and NK Pro analyst Peter Ward. In March the series continued with The Historical Causes of Korea's Division and Challenges to Reconciliation program featuring Michael D. Shin, a Fellow of Robinson College, Cambridge, who looked at the late Joseon period and the Japanese colonial period to examine the historical causes of Korean division and investigate their impact on inter-Korean reconciliation. In April, Columbia University adjunct professor Katrin Fraser Katz, Carnegie Endowment for International Peace senior research analyst Kathryn Botto, and Columbia University adjunct professor, Weatherhead East Asian Institute research scholar and Society senior director Stephen Noerper discussed the Role of Regional Players in Inter-Korean Peace and Unification in building inter-Korean peace and unification. In May, for the last installment of the series titled Bridging the Divide: Social & Cultural Integration of North and South Korea, Policy Director Jonathan Corrado interviewed Hyun In-nae, Ewha University Professor and former director of the Korea Hana Foundation, and Bada Nam, Secretary General for the South Korean non-governmental organization People for Successful Corean Reunification (PSCORE) to discuss obstacles and opportunities for inter-Korean social and cultural integration.

Global Korea and Korea's Regional Relations

In June, the Society partnered with the Japan Society and the Asia Society Policy Institute for a joint program titled, Challenges and Opportunities for U.S.-Japan-Korea Trade Relations. This program explored the dynamics of U.S.-Japan-Korea trade relations and regional economic integration and featured Asia Society Policy Institute Vice President Wendy Cutler, Waseda University Professor Emeritus and Economic Research Institute for East Asia and ASEAN Senior Research Advisor Shujiro Urata, and Korea Development Institute and Johns Hopkins University Professor Wonhyuk Lim.

The Society teamed up with the Korea Economic Institute of America for a program titled Resolved: Uniting Nations in a Divided World. This featured former UN Secretary General Ban Ki-moon, who discussed the release of his new book Resolved: Uniting Nations in a Divided World, in conversation with Korea Society board chair Ambassador Kathleen Stephens and with a welcome by Korea Society president and CEO Tom Byrne.

Exploring Korea-China relations as strategic competition between Washington and Beijing continues, the Society conducted three programs to cover different aspects of this dynamic. First, in April, the policy team invited Stimson Center senior fellow and China Program director Yun Sun and Asia Society Arthur Ross director of the Center for U.S.-China Relations Orville Schell to discuss Korea and Sino-U.S. Relations with Senior Director Stephen Noerper and policy director Jonathan Corrado. The speakers explored China policy in the new U.S. administration, alliances and expectations, and prospects for improvements or further deterioration of Sino-Korean ties. In September, the Society invited Harvard University Director of the Korea Project and Adjunct Lecturer John Park to share insights into recent North Korea developments and China's interplay. And, in October, Stanford University Director of the Shorenstein Asia-Pacific Research Center Professor Gi-Wook Shin came to discuss The Rise of Anti-Chinese Sentiments in South Korea: Political and Security Implications. Dr. Shin shared insights on rising anti-China sentiments in South Korea and their implications for the upcoming South Korean presidential election, as well as the US-ROK alliance.

In December, the 2021 policy programming season ended with two webinars focused on reviewing Korean Peninsula affairs from a global perspective. In a conversation with Pacific Forum President Emeritus and WSD-Handa Chair in Peace Studies Ralph Cossa, Thinking Northeast Asia: The Year in Review provided a media and member-friendly wrap-up of the year by way of politics and security on and around the Korean Peninsula, reflecting on wider regional trends including Korea's dealing with China-US tensions and US-Korea cooperation. In addition, the Korea Society co-hosted the Global View on the Korean Peninsula program with the National Committee on American Foreign Policy (NCAFP), featuring Walter Russell Mead, Global View Columnist at The Wall Street Journal and the James Clarke Chace Professor of Foreign Affairs and Humanities at Bard College.

Special Events

The Korea Society hosted four special events in 2021: The Annual Membership Party, Golf Tournament, Global Financial Leaders Forum, and Annual Dinner. Through these annual events, the Society highlighted our past achievements with our supporters and friends while also raising the profile of important issues in the U.S.-Korea relationship. Despite the challenges brought by the pandemic, we adapted virtual programs as well as hybrid formats to continue our special events. A number of people who are interested in Korea and the U.S.-Korea relationship, as well as important figures from diverse industries, attended these events.

The Annual Dinner is The Korea Society's premier event of the year. In 2021, it took place at The Plaza hotel in New York City on October 19th, marking the return to in-person events. The Society highlighted the full range of America's economic, political, and cultural ties with the Korean Peninsula featuring prominent keynote speaker Deputy Secretary of State Wendy R. Sherman. Former Secretary of Energy Ernest J. Moniz and Former Secretary of State Madeleine K. Albright also joined as our special guests and delivered remarks on the success and significance of the U.S.-ROK alliance.

2021 ANNUAL DINNER

This year, we presented the honorable Van Fleet Award to LG and General Motors to celebrate the establishment of their joint venture to produce EV batteries in the U.S. Chairman of LG Kwang Mo Koo and Chair and Chief Executive Officer of General Motors Mary T. Barra delivered their acceptance speeches virtually, and President & CEO of LG Energy Solution Jonghyun Kim and Senior Vice President and President of GM International Steven Kiefer accepted the award in-person on behalf of the two companies.

We also had a heartfelt tribute to the late former Secretary of State and General Colin L. Powel by Poongsan Chairman Roy Ryu, who paid tribute to General Powell's deep commitment to Korea. Secretary Powell had received the Society's Van Fleet Award in 2010. The dinner was attended by 390 distinguished guests from policy, business, academia and cultural areas.

BALTUSROL GOLF CLUB

Springfield, New Jersey

Golf Tournament

The 30th Annual Van Fleet Memorial Golf Tournament took place at Baltusrol Golf Club on June 21st. Around 80 golfers enjoyed the beautiful yet challenging golf course, abiding by the State's safety precautions; indeed it was a great opportunity for supporters and members to gather and celebrate the Society's mission with our special guest, Sean Pyun, Chief Business Officer – Asia of the Ladies Professional Golf Association (LPGA). The members' generous donations and support helped the Society to have a great turnout during the pandemic.

Annual Membership Party

At this year's New Year's Party on February 11, around 150 people attended the virtual celebration. We provided a virtual concert performed by ADG7, a multi-award winning Korean traditional music group, and received great encouragement from our supporters and members.

Global Financial Leaders Forum

At this year's Global Financial Leaders Forum, the Society furthered its strategic partnership with Maekyung Media Group and the Korea Finance Society to strengthen the US-Korean financial network. We hosted the event as the 1st Global Money Show, with the theme of "Investment amid COVID 19 Era: Consequences and Portfolio Strategy."

Young Professionals' Network (YPN)

The Young Professionals' Network (YPN) continued to provide young adults with a wide platform to connect with other professionals, further develop their careers by hearing from industry experts, and grow their interests in Korea and the U.S.-Korea relationship. This year's YPN invited speakers from arts and culture, education, business, media and entertainment, and start-ups. Virtual and hybrid YPN events took place this year including conversations with Susan Kim, CEO of Edmodo, Nelson Chai, CFO of Uber, Yul Kwon, Senior Director of Product Management at Google, Angie Byun, CEO of AB WORLD, Seung Yoon Lee, CEO and Co-Founder of Radish Fiction, and Eric Kim, Author and Staff Writer at The New York Times.

Celebrating the 10th year of YPN, The Korea Society also hosted an anniversary special with Eric Nam, one of the most influential and multi-talented Korean American singer-songwriters.
